White Oaks.

WHITE OAKS, Sept. 30, 1881.
Since Mr. Koogler was here but little has transpired of particular interest.
Property on the Reservation, in Nogales, over the Bonito, progress in development. Your correspondent has just returned from an extended examination of the Rio Bonito country and is disposed to think it one of the most promising sections of New Mexico. Miners there need have no fears but their titles will eventually be made all right. The wealth and progress of the county are not to be postponed to a small section of the meanest Indian tribe in America. Now it may be said, does any public man dare oppose the removal of these pests when their presence is the only obstacle to the development of a promising camp?
The claims upon the Cricklet lead are receiving most attention. All of them are showing more or less freegold. The gold is very fine, and lies in a very porous quartz. The ore is entirely different from any at White Oaks, but not apparently less valuable than a majority of the Baxter mountain ores. The giant lead of the Orphan Boy, Duffie and Willie and Big Fortune mines is being actively developed along its entire length of four miles. This lead crops out like a stone wall, from eight to fourteen feet wide, and pays from the surface. The above named claims are mentioned because they are not for sale, and a favorable mention cannot be classed as advertising. The Lincoln County Mining Company, of Kansas, has let contracts for two one hundred-foot tunnels and three forty-foot shafts in this region, and other claim owners are taking similar broad views of development operations.
Free gold was struck on the Old Abe, on Baxter mountain, yesterday. The indications are that this mine will pan out as well as the Homestakes or Little Mac.
The volume of White Oaks business keeps up well for the season. Real estate is moderately active at good prices. The merchants are making money and preparing for an active winter campaign.
The number of men employed this winter will be larger than at present, and there are no idle men in camp now unless from choice.
The Homestake has the Capitan lead in the No. 1 tunnel fifteen feet wide, and a five foot lateral but a few feet east of it. They are drifting from No. 2 tunnel in and along the Homestake lead toward No. 2 shaft and cutting west from No. 1 tunnel for the same lead. This company alone can give full employment this winter to fifty men, a larger number than the whole camp employed for the winters of '80 and '81.
A. M. Jones went to Socorro to-day on business connected with his mining interests.
Col. Sunderland, of Larned, Kansas, is down here looking after the mining interests owned in Pawnee county. He appears pleased with the outlook.
Slight & Blake, of the Vera Cruz mining company have returned from the East. They report arrangements as nearly perfected for the erection of machinery at Vera Cruz.
Some work is being done in the Jicarilla mines, notably on the Langston and Gold Stain.

The Case of President Arthur and His Cabinet.

I met a friend of Roscoe Conkling to-day and said to him: "What will President Arthur do now? Will he retain Blaine and the rest of the Cabinet?"
"No," he replied, "he will reconstruct his Cabinet, and that shortly, too. Blaine has tried to stay by 'knuckling' to the new President, but he has not succeeded."
"Who will be appointed Secretary of State?"
"Frelinghuysen or Conkling."
"And who Secretary of the Treasury?"
"Edwin D. Morgan. Arthur is indebted to Morgan for lifting him out of obscurity, and he never forgets his friends."
"Will he retain James as Postmaster-General?"
"No, he means to march out all of them."
"And who will be Postmaster-General?"
"George Bliss, of New York."
"And who Secretary of War?"
"John A. Logan of Illinois, or Ulysses S. Grant of Illinois."
"And who Secretary of the Interior?"
"Don Cameron of Pennsylvania."
"And who Attorney-General?"
"Emory Storr."
"Well," I remarked, "you have made a Cabinet, but doesn't it occur to you that it lacks distribution among States? You have two or three from New York, and two from Illinois."
"That is nothing," was the response. "The President is acquainted with New York men, and in selecting his constitutional advisers it is natural that he should stick to his adopted State. Besides, he might make George S. Boutwell Attorney-General."
Then I met a Half Breed of distinction and said to him: "You are no longer a supporter of the administration, is that it?"
"Yes, I am," he replied. "I will support Gen. Arthur as long as he is President of the United States, and not the chief of a faction. When he ceases to be President of the whole people I will cease to support him."

"Will he make any changes in his Cabinet?"

"I don't know. Not if he is wise."

"If he should appoint Frelinghuysen Secretary of State, and Morgan Secretary of the Treasury, and George Bliss Postmaster-General, and Gen. Grant Secretary of War, and George S. Boutwell Attorney-General, would you support him?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "I look upon Grant and all his supporters as dangerous men, dangerous to the institutions of this country. He must not put Grant into his Cabinet."

"How about Morgan?"

"Morgan is all right, but Arthur is not likely to appoint him. He beat him for Governor in 1876, and the memory of that remains."

"But didn't Morgan first raise Arthur into notice?"

"I believe so, twenty years ago. But since then Arthur has had an opportunity to make friends of his own, and he has done so, and Roscoe Conkling is one of these friends."

"What will the Republican Convention do next week?"

"It will keep out Roscoe Conkling and admit Sam Lowery."

"And whom will it nominate?"

"I don't know. If there is to be a new ticket, it will have to be new throughout."

"Won't Conkling try to get in?"

"Yes, of course he will."

"But he won't succeed?"

"No, sir, he won't succeed."—N. Y. Sun.

The young Positivists are multiplying. Passing a group of children the other evening, we heard a little girl of a dogmatic turn of mind remark to a little boy persuasively, "Now, you are a bad angel, ain't you?" "No," was the dogmatic rejoinder, "I ain't a bad angel and I ain't a good angel. There's no such things as angels, anyway."
